

BlackLine for Federal Government Agencies

A Foundation for Rapid Finance Transformation

With FedRAMP authorization pending, BlackLine offers federal agencies a secure, government-grade, AI-enabled finance automation platform trusted by 66% of the Fortune 50 to solve challenges in highly complex enterprise environments.

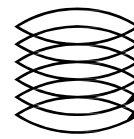

BlackLine provides federal agencies with a foundation for finance transformation that can keep pace with rapidly changing requirements and expectations. Modern AI technology built into BlackLine provides advanced capabilities that align with federal goals of modernizing both technology and government operations. With BlackLine, federal agencies are positioned to:

Improve efficiency and speed by automating repetitive manual work

Free employees from manual effort to focus on higher-impact tasks

Standardize data and processes to eliminate discrepancies and duplicate efforts

Increase visibility into real-time information for management and auditors

Strengthen financial controls for better accuracy, compliance, and risk mitigation

Audits by the Government Accountability Office (GAO) and the Offices of Inspector General (OIG) of various federal agencies consistently find issues, material weaknesses, and errors at federal agencies, year after year. These findings are often rooted in three key areas of insufficient staffing, outdated financial systems and processes, and fraud, waste, and abuse.

"Investment in financial management professionals is critical to the success of the DoD's financial management strategy; however, the DoD faces difficulties in hiring and retaining staff with the requisite specialized skills. The DoD is hampered by frequent turnover in military and civilian leadership within the financial management community."

A Proven Track Record of Customer Success

"We now have a prescribed approach to preparing and documenting reconciliations. Reconciliation frequency, type of supporting documentation, and critical fields are consistent irrespective of location. When I think about BlackLine, seamless, transparent, greater visibility, and increased control are all words that come to mind."

Eamonn Matthews
Business Process Lead – Accounting & Reporting,
The Coca-Cola Company

"We recently did a larger implementation of a software platform called BlackLine that we use in the accounting space, and it's literally enabled us to save tens of thousands of hours of what was very manually intensive work because we can now automate it."

Kathryn Mikells
CFO, ExxonMobil

"With BlackLine financial reporting, we no longer do manual work in Excel. Everything is automated and in one place. It's now very easy to see preliminary results, what is complete, and what is still open."
